

Please note that I fully support Broadband over Power Lines. It will open the door to more competition within the broadband Internet service provider industry. Currently the average price for high-speed broadband service is way too high. This is most evident when comparing the average price to that of some provider that do not over charge. My current 3.5 Mbps service is only $40 a month, but all other providers in my area offer that speed at over $200 a month. Obviously someone is making more money than is necessary.

Thanks,
